Oaky North

I want to take the opportunity to thank everyone for their efforts at Oaky North in 2019.

This has been a very strong year for our business, solely as a result of this team and your drive to deliver results.

Please ensure that we continue to focus on SafeCoal so we can finish the year as strongly as we started. For those of you working through the Xmas period, thank-you for your support and those of you taking a well-earned break please ensure your holiday period is a safe one and you enjoy the time with your families.

Merry Xmas to you and your families and see you all in 2020.

Oaky Surface

It is that time of the year again where we start preparing for the festive season and look forward to time spent with family and friends. It is also a time to reflect on the year almost gone.

After a poor start to 2019 it is very pleasing to see that, the Surface Operations team are now into the ninth month without an injury. We need to stay focused especially at this time of the year as we all want to enjoy the festivities that the season presents. It is at this time that we must focus not only on our health and safety at work, but as we all travel to enjoy time with family and loved ones we must stay vigilant so as to arrive safely at our destinations.

At years end it is good to reflect on the business performance. The mine has continued to produce in excess of budget for the whole year. The CHPP team have matched this performance by washing and railing all the available coal. The Gas and Drilling have contributed the highest power generation in a year while reducing our gas emissions and the Surface team have delivered a record area of rehabilitation. Congratulations to all the Surface Team for their contribution.

In the first edition of the Tieri News we mentioned several projects for 2019. Following all the prefeasibility work at South Oak Park it was revealed that this project will not continue as the quality of coal was not as high as first hoped. The HBDF installation in the CHPP stalled in 2019 but it is expected that it will be completed next year. A lot of work has been undertaken this year to produce a product quality coal from reprocessing the old tails. While there is more work needed, we hope to be including product coal for this source into trains next year.

I would like to thank all members of the Surface Operation for their continued support to Oaky Creek and wish you all a very merry and safe Christmas.

Glenn Sauer
Surface Operations Manager

Engineering - Automation

'There's nobody underground'

CSIRO engineers have developed a world first "flameproof" 3D laser scanning device that can "see things our eyes cannot" by transmitting a full panoramic view of an underground coal mine in real time.

Key points

- The device will allow miners to leave the coal face and manage longwall operations remotely.
- Five different mines in NSW and Queensland are now trialling the ExScan.
- Glencore currently has 16 ExScans underground but will have 50 in place by Christmas.

Called the ExScan, the device is set to revolutionise the industry, allowing miners to leave the coal face and manage longwall operations remotely from a control centre above ground.

This form of "intelligent mining" is currently being trialled by Glencore at its Oaky Creek mine site between the mining towns of Tieri and Middlemount in central Queensland.

The industry, which contributes $7 billion to Australia's export income, had been plagued with safety issues including the emergence of black lung disease.

Glencore technology superintendent Lauris Hemming said the industry had been aiming for safe full automation for decades.

"What you can see here is the penultimate stage, we are almost there. We are a few steps away from actually being able to remove the people from the coal face," he said.

"Removing people from the dust, removing people from the hazardous environment — take them away from the machinery interaction and keep them in a safer place, above ground."

The advancement is achievable after years of research by the team at CSIRO's Centre for Advanced Technologies in Brisbane.

Environment & Community

Update from the Environment & Community (E&C) Team

In the last edition of Tieri News, I spoke about the work the Oaky Creek Coal (OCC) E&C team is doing to progressively and responsibly rehabilitate the land impacted by our mining operations. In September, we submitted our formal application for certification from the Department of Environment & Science for two areas of land. We're currently awaiting the outcome and look forward to updating you in the new year.

In addition to land rehabilitation, we are also stewards of OCC's water management facilities. As such, we are constantly investigating and developing new systems and processes to ensure the safe, effective and responsible management of the water we use in our mining operations.

Two initiatives we are currently working on are our Reverse Osmosis Plant and the Automated Water Release System.

Reverse Osmosis (RO) Plant

Oaky Creek Coal Mine built a Reverse Osmosis Water Treatment Plant (ROWTP) in 2014 with the purpose of treating mine affected water stored on the mine lease originating from earlier mining activities. The drivers for the requirement of a suitable water treatment solution were:

- the ongoing need for costly dewatering activities to allow new longwall coal extraction to proceed safely in areas where large volumes of water are being stored
- the need for improved water quality as prior use of mine impacted water caused scaling of mining equipment and utilities
- water storage capacity on mine lease at critical high levels
- the need to reduce the consumption of fresh water

The treated mine water has subsequently been used in the mining operations as process water. Hence the utilization of the RO Plant offsets the mine's requirement for fresh water supply from the McKenzie River. Additionally there are times where RO Plant produces water surplus to the needs of the operations and is alternatively released into the environment in accordance with licensed conditions for the local ecology and downstream users.

A by-product of the RO process is the production of brine which re-enters the water management system. We are continuing to implement processes and methodologies to minimize the volume of brine being produced, isolate the brine from the broader water management system; and establish brine disposal options - such as evaporation areas - to successfully prevent the salt from returning to the site's water system.

Environment & Community

Automated Water Release System

To optimize control of mine water releases during natural creek flow events so that the releases are timed when water flow and qualities are suitable, we have developed an automated system to release of mine-affected water from surface operations when conditions are suitable.

We believe that the wireless network of integrated monitoring stations, instrumentation and sampling equipment, is capable of automating the release of water over the 30km distance in real-time.

This means the allowable amounts and qualities of water released during the event are continually calculated in real-time instead of relying on past manual processes which are both time-consuming and less responsive to the changes of rainfall and creek flows.

We have just completed an annual check of the automated release system, confirming that remote and local operation of the release system is functioning properly. A number of personnel were involved in the process and we thank them for their support.

When the wet season does arrive, the new system will operate to capture and process data in real-time. As the system is still relatively new, personnel will continue to perform some manual monitoring during the release events to verify the accuracy of the data captured via the automated system.

These are just two of the many ways we are working to progress responsible mining at OCC. I look forward to sharing more examples with you in 2020. For now, I thank my team for their ongoing passion and unwavering commitment to our purpose and wish all of you a happy and healthy end to the year.

Town Services

Be considerate of your neighbours

It is important to remember our community consists of shift workers and to be considerate of your neighbours sleep requirements. If you are more aware of your neighbour's shifts and lifestyle, problems can often be avoided before they are created.

- Take time to get in touch with your neighbours and keep the lines of communication open.
- Discuss your work pattern with close neighbours so they are aware of the times to try to avoid noisy activities.

Thoughtful design and practice can reduce the impact of noise on our lives and improve the quality of our living environment. Noise can interfere with sleep and cause fatigue, irritability, headaches and stress. We all need to contain and reduce noise in order to enjoy a healthy lifestyle. As the Festive Season approaches there are more social gatherings and celebrations, please be aware not everyone around you will have time to celebrate and you are responsible for your own actions as well as any visitors you have at your property. Please make your neighbours aware of any gatherings you may be having so they can advise you if any excess noise will affect their quiet enjoyment of their property. Under the general tenancy agreements in place for all properties in Tieri, Section 21 (2):

21 Tenant's use of premises - ss 10 and 184

- (1) The tenant may use the premises only as a place of residence or mainly as a place of residence or for another use allowed under a special term.
- (2) The tenant must not -
 - (a) use the premises for an illegal purpose; or
 - (b) cause a nuisance by the use of the premises; or
Examples of things that may constitute a nuisance -
 - using paints or chemicals on the premises that go onto or cause odours on adjoining land
 - causing loud noises
 - allowing large amounts of water to escape onto adjoining land
 - (c) interfere with the reasonable peace, comfort or privacy of a neighbour of the tenant; or
 - (d) allow another person on the premises to interfere with the reasonable peace, comfort or privacy of a neighbour of the tenant.

This is a legal requirement under the RTRA Act and can result in a breach notice or notice to leave being issued due to continued breaches. If you are struggling to find a good time to talk to your neighbour in person, consider leaving them a note in their letter box. Please ensure all forms of communication are done in a positive way.

Securing your home when you go on holidays

Going away on holidays is a chance to escape the day to day and relax. It's important to have the entry points to your home secured appropriately, it's just as important to double check and make sure all entry points are actually closed and locked. Ensure not to leave any loose items outside the property that could be blown away during any storm activity.

Town Office Closure

Town Office will close at 4pm on Friday 20th December 2019 and reopen on Monday 6th January 2020. For all emergency maintenance during this time please call 0409 513 225. We wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and a Safe and Happy New Year.

CTM Links

CTM Links has been very busy with the W.I.T (Women in Tieri) Project in the last few months. As well as this, the community was able to celebrate Halloween by Trick a Treating around Tieri and take part in the road safety information session where they were able to enjoy lollies, a BBQ, refreshments and there was a prize awarded for best dressed Halloween outfit before dispersing into the community.

Pilates in the Grass was very successful with local instructor Kristi Leeson doing an amazing job in running the class to suit both beginners and advanced students.

The Laughter Yoga High Tea was a great opportunity to have women and children connect learning the skill of Laughter Yoga and then enjoying an elegant High Tea at V's Café.

On the 30th of November the Tieri Town Connection Day was held to help connect the community with local shop owners as well as presenting an opportunity for local clubs and services to offer information. Local stalls joined to be on show selling products and providing information, as a bonus there was also The Central Highlands Science Centre performing a series of experiments to entertain the little ones.

The last W.I.T event for the year will be the Tieri Carols by Candlelight being held on the 5th of December. This is a free event for the entire community to come together and enjoy a BBQ, treats and Carols performed by the incredible "Sophie Phillis" with a special visit from Santa.

Donations are still welcome for the CTM LINKS pantry drive, to be allocated to families in need. For drop of details please call ahead.

To stay informed on any Information, services and projects that CTM LINKS may be taking part in please follow 'CTM LINKS Tieri' on Facebook

Transitions

There have been some special visitors to Tieri State School this term. The children from Tieri Kindy have had two excursions to Prep to see what school will be like next year.

Donna Bennett has facilitated these days, as the children have played 'I Spy' around the school looking for special places like the library, tuckshop and playground. They have also found where to put their lunch and brain break and where to hang their bag.

Excursions are a part of the transition process that helps our school prepare for the children who will join us in 2020. The other important transition for our school is the primary to high school transition for our Year 6 students as they prepare to go from being the eldest in our school to the youngest in secondary school.

In each of the processes, the relationships we build as a school with our Early Childhood services and Capella SHS are significant ones that we will nurture into the future.

Tieri State School

Making a Splash

Our students have developed their swimming skills and understanding of water safety across the term. The results of all the hard work in the pool was evident at our swimming carnival in Week 7 of the term with students giving every event a 'red hot go'.

It was exciting to see such happy faces on our students, shining with pride at their achievements. Some of the most special moments of the day came in the form of great sportsmanship of students cheering each other on and congratulating their classmates.

Swimming is an integral part of our curriculum that can only happen with key partnerships – our accredited swim instructors, our parent volunteers and staff, especially our HPE teacher, Yvette Martin.
